this alley sand dollar the giraffes gallop a gallon pink pillow green balloon yellow tulips fresh salad the melon shallow water is pulling large antlers the number eleven white telephone calendar of events in the envelope one lollipop the wallet the willow tree yellow fish

There are several shops along this alley. I found a sand dollar and some shells on the beach. In Africa, we watched the giraffes gallop across the plains. It is easier for me to pour a half-gallon of milk than a gallon. The pink pillow matches the flowers on the chair. The green balloon has landed in the field. There is one red tulip and two yellow tulips on this bowl. The fresh salad is ready to eat. The melon has been cut with a long sharp knife. The marsh is in the shallow water near the ocean. The tractor is pulling something behind it. The moose has large antlers. Why is the number eleven at the top of this page? The white telephone is on the cluttered desk. The newsletter lists the calendar of events. When the letter is finished, it goes in the envelope. There is only one lollipop in the pile of candy. The wallet has money and credit cards. The willow tree is growing by the lake. The bright yellow fish has a large mouth.
